JUNIOR HIGH CORNERSTONE CEREMONY SAT.

Officers of State Masonic Lodge, Two Bands and Two Speakers Will Put on Impressive Program

Tomorrow afternoon at 1.15 o'clock the cornerstone of the Memorial Junior High School, Second Ave. and Quick street, will be laid with ceremonies in charge of Geo. W. Donahower, president of the school board.

The laying of the cornerstone will mark the completion of a three year effort on the part of the Board and Superintendent Martin L. Peters to establish a modern Junior High School in Phoenixville. Three years ago Mr. Peters began to point out to the members of the Board the need of a new building in the borough.

Signs of overcrowded conditions were beginning to be manifest and, estimating the rapid growth of the school population of the borough it was deemed advisable to go ahead with the plans for a new Junior High School. At that time all of the present members of the Board were in office with the exception of Cooper T. Bishop, who was elected in November of 1929 when the loan was passed.

In the month of February of 1929, Mr. Peters formally went before the Board with a proposition for a new school building. He informed the Board of the need of such a building and methods by which it might be realized. At that time all were in favor of the erection of the new building and on September 23, 1929, a resolution was passed pointing out its need.

BETTER TIMES ARE NEAR, DAVIS SAYS

Labor Secretary and Senator-Elect From Pennsylvania Addressed County Voters Last Night

That the worst is over in the national business depression and that better times are "just around the corner," was the declaration of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis in a brief address delivered at a dinner meeting of county voters held last night at the State Armory in West Chester.

Secretary Davis, who is also Senator-Elect from Pennsylvania, said the depression is not as serious as at the end of the Wilson administration, when 6,000,000 men were out of work in the United States.

The Senator-Elect was given a wonderful ovation by the approximately 350 who attended the dinner, the majority of whom were members of the Moose organization from various towns in Chester county. Some 15 men and women from Phoenixville attended.

Fred S. Wood, chairman of the Real Republican Club of West Chester, was toastmaster at the dinner and introduced the various speakers. The principal address was delivered by Hon James Maxwell Fassett, of Washington, D. C., special assistant to the United States Attorney General. Philip H. Dewey, State Secretary of Internal Affairs, was another speaker. Messages received from prominent personages in political life of the State were read.

The menu served at the dinner follows: Fruit cocktail, hearts of celery, olives bisque of oysters, dinner rolls, butter, egg-nog sherbet, broiled half spring chicken, potato croquettes, early June peas, hearts of lettuce salad, mayonnaise dressing, ice cream, cake, coffee nuts and mints.

Secretary Davis is past head of the Moose organization in the country and is always warmly greeted by his fellow lodgemen wherever he appears.

50-Year Term For Kidnapping Results In Prisoner's Collapse

Tony Craparotta, Recipient of One of Longest Terms Ever Meted Out in Montgomery County, is Carried From Room in Great Excitement; Two Others Sentenced From 10 to 50 Years

The heaviest sentences imposed in the Montgomery County Courts for many years were received late yesterday afternoon at Norristown by three self-confessed kidnappers at the hands of Judge Williams.

The sentences as imposed were as follows:

Frank Filippone, Norristown, 25 to 50 years.

Tony Craparotta, alias Jimmy Burns for some years a well known Brooklyn boxer, 20 to 50 years.

Charles Termini, a Bridgeport barber, 10 to 25 years.

All sentences are to the Eastern Penitentiary.

As the sentence was being imposed upon Craparotta in the slow, measured tones employed always in his court utterances by Judge Williams, when the sound of "not more than 50 years and not less than 20 years in the Penitentiary for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania," the prisoner suddenly, without warning, collapsed like the proverbial rag and fell in a crumpled heap upon the floor.

Immediately there was great confusion. Women screamed and men yelled and some tried to force their way from their seats in the packed court room to the bar enclosure. Court attendants massed in the center and side aisles and drove them from the court room. It was stated that most of those causing the disturbance were members of families and friends of the prisoners who were shocked out of control by Craparotta's collapse.

During this time the other two prisoners remained impassive in their respective chairs.

In the meantime Craparotta's senseless form was carried from the Bar to the prisoner's pen by four tipstaves.

When quiet had been restored, Judge Williams passed the sentence on Termini.

Under the law, the sentencing judge can give a life sentence at his discretion as was done in the case of "The Crank," the kidnapper of the Coughlin baby, by the late Judge Swartz, some years ago. Modified sentences were imposed because of the fact that the kidnappers repented of their act and released the five-year-old boy, without demanding ransom.

The case was based upon the kidnapping of Ignazio Arena, Jr., grandson of Iganzia, Sr., a well known Norristown pretzel manufacturer, and a son of Samuel Arena, connected with the business.

Frank Filippone was an employee of the Arena's but had been discharged.

Filippone, it is alleged, sent to Brooklyn for Crapparota. The two went to Termini's barber shop and engaged him in the enterprise.

He loaned them his new automobile, but refused to give them his driver's or owner's license, so that if they were caught, he would not be involved, it was alleged by the State.

On October 15, last, the two men waited at the school the five-year-old boy attended and when he came out, Filippone, whom the boy knew from being around his grandfather's factory, accosted him, gave him some candy and invited him to take a ride. The boy accepted, and was driven to Craparotta's home in Brooklyn.

Then the kidnappers got "cold feet" on their project. The two men, after placing the boy in the care of Mrs. Crapparotta returned to Norristown by automobile. The woman took the boy to Philadelphia, where she abandoned him in Broad Street station. There the boy was found by a newsboy, who took him to the Travelers' Aid Bureau. The latter's agent communicated with the Norristown police.

BANK OFFICIAL ARRESTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

Frank W. Coffman, Former Paoli Bank Vice-President, Charged With Taking $6,900

Frank W. Coffman, 35, former vice-president of the Paoli Bank and Trust Company, was arrested last night on a warrant sworn out before 'Squire Henry Guss, of West Chester, charging embezzlement of $6,900.

Following Coffman's arrest at his Upper Darby home bail was posted by Lowell Gable, of Paoli, for a hearing of the former band head on November 24. The amount of bail set by the West Chester Justice of the Peace was $2,500. Coffman resigned his position in the bank three weeks ago.

The charges were preferred by Fredrick Hallowell, a state bank investigator, who found that $6,900 was missing from the bank's fund. The specific charges are that Coffman abetted a clerk into making false entries on the books from time to time and that on one occasion on June 16, 1930 $5,600 was credited to the account of the Liberty Security Corporation and debited from the account of the Central National Bank of Philadelphia.

The clerk is not under arrest and investigators intimated that only Coffman would be dealt with according to law. Three weeks ago Coffman resigned his position and moved with his wife and child to Upper Darby. It was there that he was arrested.

The arrest of Coffman came as a great shock to the residents of Paoli as the bank vice-president was well thought of in that community.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR $850,000 GAS HOLDER

Philadelphia Electric Company Gives Work to Ambler Contractor; 4,400 Tons of Steel Required

A new call to both skilled and unskilled labor in the Greater Philadelphia area is reflected in the announcement yesterday by Philadelphia Electric Company of the awarding of the contract for its new 10,000,000 cubic foot gas holder at West Conshohocken, to the Cruse-Kemper Company, of Ambler. Coincident with the foregoing is the further statement that 4,400 tons of steel specified by the contractors, will be furnished by mills in the Philadelphia district. Ten carloads of lumber will also be used in the project, which represents a total cost, for construction and installation, of approximately $850,000.

"In the West Conshohocken gas holder situation, we definitely set out to do two things," William H. Taylor, president of Philadelphia Electric, stated in connection with the announcement. "In the first place we advanced the date of construction from 1931 to 1930 in order that additional needs for labor might be created immediately and, secondly, we decided that every part and parcel of the job, from the fabrication and erection to the materials entering its makeup, should be directed into local manufacturing channels, as nearly 100 per cent as possible. As to how well this desire has been achieved, the actual award speaks for itself."

AWARD $7500 TO WOMAN FOR LOSS OF AN EYE

Mrs. Carrie E. Shoultz, of Devault, Collects Heavy Damages From Manufacturer of Disinfectant

A Devault woman was granted $7,500 for an eye in the United States District Court in Philadelphia.

The woman, 32-year-old mother of ten children, is Mrs. Carrie E. Shoultz, whose husband Harry, operates a farm for General W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, near Devault station.

The jury set the price of the eye which Mrs. Shoultz lost as the result of an explosion of a bottle of disinfectant liquid which she purchased from an Illinois manufacturer. The woman is said to have purchased the disinfectant in a bottle and the cork "popped" out and the liquid caused her to lose sight of one eye. Her husband was also awarded $717 for medical care.

The manufacturer against whom the $7,500 verdict was given is the W. T. Rawleigh Company, of Freeport, Ill. The jury did not reach a verdict until midnight and its findings were sealed and announced yesterday by Judge Albert W. Johnson, of Scranton, who is substituting for Judge Oliver B. Dickinson who is ill. The accident on the Atterbury farm occurred on March 8, 1928.

3 ENTER PLEAS IN MONT. CO. COURT

Victor Lockoff, of Phoenixville, and Others Will Be Called Later by Judge Knight for Sentence

Three people charged with felonious entry and larceny and one woman charged with conspiracy to defraud entered pleas of nolo contendere yesterday before Judge Harold G. Knight, of Montgomery County court.

Those entering pleas were Harry and Fred Lockoff, of Harmonville, Victor Lockoff, of Phoenixville, and Catherine Wallace, of Norristown. The Lockoffs were placed on trial at the last term of criminal court at which time they repudiated statements they had made to police, alleging at the time of the confessions they had been beaten by the officers. At the trial the jury was out 24 hours without rendering a verdict and was discharged.

With the Lockoffs was indicted Catharine Wallace, of Norristown, but she was not placed on trial with them. Harry Lockoff and the Wallace girl were also charged with adultery.

At the last trial Harry Conklin, a former Norristown policeman was also arraigned. At the trial he demurred to the testimony of the Commonwealth and Judge Knight rendered a verdict of not guilty in his case.

The re-trial of the Lockoffs was scheduled for yesterday. When the cases were called their counsel, Attorneys Maxwell Strawbridge, Robert Trucksess and Dennis O'Neill asked permission to enter pleas of nolo contendere, such a plea being equivalent in its ultimate effects to one of guilty.

Judge Knight and Assistant District Attorney Rinalducci consented to such pleas being entered and Judge Knight directed that the defendants be brought before him for sentence when called.

Upon motion of Assistant District Attorney Rinalducci the charges of adultery preferred against Harry Lockoff and Catharine Wallace were nolle prossed.

The cases were based upon an alleged plot by the defendants to stage a hold-up on a Norristown store and the stealing of slot machines from a Conshohocken store.

The Kiwanis Camp for boys was included in the report of that committee. The Kiwanians are doing a good work with the money they receive and most of it is expended in a quiet manner to those who are really deserving.

Ralph Moore reported on the bowling team's activities and following the meeting they defeated the Independents in two games out of three After the match the first and second teams of the club engaged in a game and the second team was the victor by six pins.

This amount was secured entirely from pennies which the men had in their pockets at the meeting. It was first decided to use this money for a Christmas party but the Kiwanians last night voted to have Mr. Klenk distribute the money to needy in the borough. He will have charge of this fund and will handle it as he sees fit.

There were no birthdays at the meeting and Fred W. Deininger, as a guest of Harry Deger, was the only visitor.

METHODISTS DECIDE NOT TO REBUILD

Instead, Church Property is Being Improved at Cost of $6,000 and Main Street Lots Will Be Sold

Improvements being made to the First Methodist Church are fast nearing completion. For the past several weeks the firm of Sheeler and Shafer have been engaged in stuccoing the exterior of the building, the final coat of which will be finished by the end of the week. Frank Williams, of Port Providence, is painting the window frames and this work will be finished during the next week. When completed the building will present a fine appearance.

The large pipe organ has been taken apart and shipped to a Philadelphia firm, famous for their organ work, and will be entirely rebuilt and reinstalled in the auditorium of the church before the Christmas season. When completed it is assured that the rebuilt instrument will be one of the finest in this community. Chimes will be added to the manual.

At a congregational meeting several months ago it was definitely decided that a new church would not be built on the lot on Main Street, near Fifth Avenue, which the congregation purchased several years ago and that all efforts would be directed toward the improvement of the present building and equipment. The trustees at that time were given the sanction of the congregation to dispose of the lots when opportunity presented. The works which is now being completed is the first result of such action as a cost of approximately $6,000 more. Other improvements are in prospect as soon as these are taken cared for such as the enlargement of the Sunday School Department and redecorating the interior of the auditorium. The congregation as a whole are taking a healthy interest in the work and various organizations within the church have undertaken to assist in financing the work.

The trustees of the Church, who are officially responsible for the conduct of the affairs of the congregation, are being warmly congratulated upon their success. The Trustees are:—President, Charles W. Bothwell; Secretary, George J. Arters; Treasurer, Wayne D. Jones; Christian C. Carmack; William H. MacDade; George I. Benham; C. Howard Peters; Joseph W. Rossiter; and Samuel K. Barkley. Messrs. Arters, Carmack and Barkley compose the Property Committee.

Phoenixville borough officers arrested a bootlegger.

Walter Zamm, of 1523 Bristol street, Philadelphia, was the man arrested by officers Cable, Scott and Morris last night when five gallons of alleged liquor was found in his machine when it was located on Starr street.

The defendant is now in the Chester County jail at West Chester as he was unable to raise bail money last night following his plea of guilty before 'Squire Frank Kurtz to charges of transporting of illegal liquor.

The automobile was stopped about seven o'clock last evening. Zamm was willing to admit his guilt at the hearing and was committed to the borough lock-up during last night and this morning was taken to West Chester by Officer Cable.
